

Maharishi Introduces his Vedic Science to the world – the Maastricht Assembly lectures (1991)

Friday 3 – Thursday 9 May 2019 (6 days)

'Vedo nityam adhiyatam; study the Veda daily. And we have known, we have understood that the study of the Veda is the study of consciousness. That's why twice daily meditation is the study of the Veda. All that we are engaged in is study of the Veda, because Veda is structured in consciousness. And now every time from the turbulent level of consciousness, active level of consciousness, we come to the silent level of consciousness. This is the field of consciousness. Veda, or knowledge, is the structure of consciousness. So the whole thing is in the experience of active levels of consciousness and silent levels of consciousness. This is the whole range of study of the Veda.'

Maharishi, 18 January 1991, Maastricht, Holland with Dr Bevan Morris Prime Minister of the Global Country of World Peace and International President for Maharishi Universities of Management.

Dr Morris has been active with Maharishi's programmes for more than 50 years since becoming a teacher of Transcendental Meditation in India in 1969 and has probably spent more time with Maharishi than almost anybody else.

This historic series of Maharishi's lectures will be of special interest for everyone who aspires to understand Maharishi Vedic Science as he took great care to make his points complete for the understanding of all.

We are fortunate to have Dr Bevan Morris lead this course for us - he has always had the gift to summarise and comment whenever Maharishi spoke, to guide and aid our absorption of this timeless knowledge. Maharishi praised Dr Morris as the greatest educator of this age. We will find ourselves effortlessly assimilating profound wisdom - enlivening Bliss in our physiology.
